

ESSENTIAL LEADERSHIP

AMY CARRINGTON STOUT
MEMBER EDUCATION MANAGER
KENTUCKY LEAGUE OF CITIES

Originally from Mt. Sterling, Amy holds a bachelor's degree in journalism and mass communication from Samford University and an honors degree in media studies from Victoria University in New Zealand. Her professional journey began in career development at Georgetown College. While managing a full-time career, Amy earned her master's degree in community and leadership development from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, Food & Environment. She joined Commerce Lexington in 2011, progressing to vice president of leadership development for the chamber over her 12-year tenure. In her role she oversaw four year-round leadership programs and created an annual conference for emerging leaders. She assumed the role of member education manager at KLC in December 2023, drawn by its mission of serving those who serve.

Amy currently serves as the board president for the Lexington Children's Theatre and is a regent at Transylvania University. She and her husband, Hunter, are the parents of Chloe (5) and Jack (3).
